I was placed in John Deere ,a manufacturing company but hired us for software role. I am currently in training period ,The company is good and work culture is also good. Basically for the online test ,they will be asking MCQ based questions both technical and aptitude. For the interview they asked from the resume .So you have to prepare your resume well and ready to answer the questions that they ask ,so make your resume clean. They will focus on your projects that you have done and ask technical questions from the tech stack that you have used for your projects and few HR questions would be asked.

All the best!!
