They asked 2 coding questions. One is easy and one is moderate level question. We can solve these questions if we practice programming regularly/daily in GFG/Leetcode/HackerRank/HackerEarth.

The candidates shortlisted from Round 1 attended the PPT. 59 students shortlisted to attend PPT.

Round 2: (Behavioural Assessment)

It is a non-elimination round.

Round 3 : (Techno-Managerial Round)

This round went for like 90 minutes.

Interview started with introduce yourself.

Then he asked to elaborate the project which I mentioned in introduce yourself.

I explained the project for 15 minutes and he asked questions from that.

Then he asked about my Final Year Project which we completed only less than 15% at that time. I explained about the Final Year Project and he asked some questions and also give suggestions to improve it a bit. This discussion went for like 15 minutes.

Then he asked me about how I am managing my time because I mentioned I am part of 3 to 4 clubs and having some role to play in more than 2 clubs.

After that he started asking questions from Data Structures, Algorithms, DBMS, Operating Systems, Computer Networks, Object Oriented Programming, Software Engineering, React Js, Next Js, Ajax and some technologies I mentioned that I have hands-on working experience.

In OS, he asked questions from Semaphore, Process Scheduling and Memory Management.

In Software Engineering, he asked questions from Agile Methodology and some basics.

He asked me to list various data structures and its applications.

He also asked SQL queries and some basic concepts from DBMS.

Finally Interview was over and he asked whether I have any questions.

I asked him 3 questions at the end.

Be prepared or have some scripted answers for questions like introduce yourself, some most common HR/Managerial questions asked in most of the interviews (Refer Google and Youtube), etc.

Have clear knowledge about your projects.

You must ask questions to the interviewers if you get a chance, because it should be like two way conversation.

Round 4: (HR)

We made a Powerpoint to introduce ourself. So first she asked me to present the PPT to introduce myself.

She asked questions about my family, strengths and weaknesses and other typical HR questions. (Be prepared to answer all the HR interview questions before the interview itself)

She asked some situation based questions.

I got full marks in online test so she didn't asked me to explain the answers. She asked how I prepared to answer all the questions correctly.

They have our answers as PDFs and they asked questions from that. Some of my friends are asked to explain the submitted answers.

At the end, she asked whether I have any questions to ask and I asked some questions to her from the Pre-placement Talk. Make sure you listen to the PPT well.

Finally, I got selected and got offer for Samurai Programmer.

Note :

- Don't give-up and keep practicing code and aptitude.
- Be prepared.
- We should be at the right place at the right time to get selected so don't get frustrated and stop revising/preparing in the mid of the placements.

All the best and All is well !!!
